PHS 2001 Yearbook

The End of the World And Beyond...

The Millennium is finally here and the world went out with neither a whimper nor a bang. The new era just snuck in the back door. If last year had to be summed up as a single word I would use ... hectic. Not only did we change formats this year, from a hard-bound yearbook to a compact disk, but the staff also changed. Due to funding cuts, the yearbook class, traditionally run by Mrs. Prichard, was eliminated. The media class, headed by Mr. Young, took over the responsibilities. The all new staff has worked very hard to keep our yearbook alive. Despite a multitude of problems, we have brought you, the reader, a brighter, more interactive yearbook. The yearbook is here so that from the kilt wearing prom goers, to the classmates you know so well, all the best and worst of your high school years can be recalled in the future and shared with your families and friends. From the end of one era and to the perpetual rebirth of each new day, this yearbook strives to go 'To The End of the World, and Beyond...'. Now read on and enjoy the creative blend of new techniques together with the traditional basics as found in this year's commemorative yearbook.

May the best memories live forever,

Alan "Tigga" Ranney Eddie Waltenspiel
Ian Cowley Ashley Everest Adam A. Epstein

The soccer brutes of Pacific/Bandon High School fared well for the 2000 season. After graduating a large portion of their starting line-up, they faced an uncertain future and seemingly no chance at the playoffs. But, contrary to the expectation, the team managed to pull off a winning season, missing the playoffs by a single game. The team that preceeded them left them with big shoes to fill, but surprisingly, they filled those shoes quite well.

The J.V. volleyball team was made up of all freshman and one sophomore. Even though they weren't the best, they still had fun and learned a lot. No matter how far behind or ahead they were, they never gave up. "The year was fun although I wish it could have been more successful," commented squad hitter Andrea Everest.

The Varsity volleyball squad this year had four returning seniors: Starla Clayton, Elizabeth Feldhaus, Erica Longton, and Shilo McKenzie. Their presence led the team. They will be greatly missed next year. Although they may not have had a very successful season according to the book, they learned a lot, experienced a lot, and had fun in the process. So with the season behind them, all they can do now is look forward to next year, because you never know what could happen.

The girls JV team was full of spirit. Though they had a rough season, they never gave up. Assistant coach Wayne Everest says, "It might be easier to win now, but in the long run, losing builds heart and character." With the heart of lions, the girls stormed the court every game and they should be commended for this.

With another young team this year, the Lady Pirates took everyone by surprise. They won three of seven games in pre-season, and lost three games by very close margins. Pre-season ended on a high note with the Pirates winning the last two games. The actual season may not have seemed as successful, but according to Coach Wayne Everest, "Our league is one of the toughest 2A leagues in the state. It's even tougher than the Far West League."

The varsity boys were young and Coach Lee Pestana didn't have high hopes, but they surprised everyone, missing the playoff by only one game. Though, at times, the season was rough, they stuck it out and won many games. One of the biggest nights was the game against Gold Beach where the Pacific boys caused a major upset. They played a stall game and slowed down the tempo. Because of this, they came up with the win. Through hard work and perseverance, the boys basketball team rose above all expectations.

This year's track team was one of the biggest in recent years. With 29 people out, the team was very well rounded. A combination of talent and numbers were the key to their successful season. The boys took fourth and the girls took second in district. Seven people qualified for state. "It was fun and I can't wait till next year." stated MVP Tony Culley.

CHESS CLUB & KNOWLEDGE BOWL

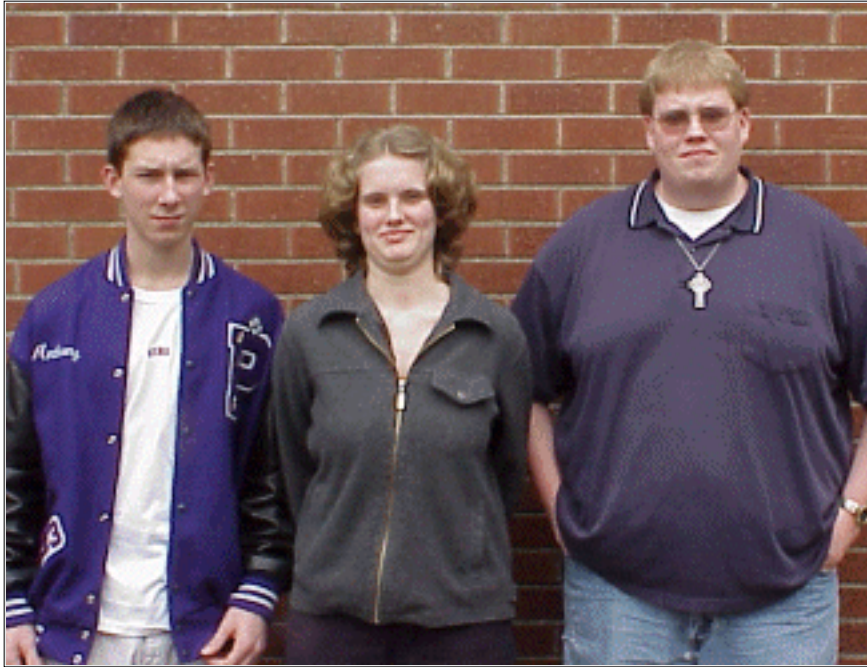

Chess club members: Kevin Gore, Adam Epstein, Jason Miles, Ian Ranney, and Adviser, Robin Hehn.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Student body officers, Anthony Pagano; Secretary/Treasurer, Sara Moskowitz; Vice President, and Kevin Gore; President.

The student council was met with a challenge this year. SSR was taken away so the normal meeting time was not available. The only time to meet was at lunch. This provided for a lack of meetings. Nevertheless, the student council managed to sponsor a welcome back dance at the beginning of the school year to kick things off. The dance was enjoyed by everyone that attended. They also helped organize Red Ribbon week, a week about drug awareness, and the end of the year barbecue.

Student council members: Back: adviser Paul Young, Kevin Gore, Tyler Tronson, Audra Loeber, Lena Gilbreath, Daniel House, and Andrea Everest. Front: Heather House, Ashley Everest, Ashley Wilson, Brandi Peabody, and Theresa Ziegler.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

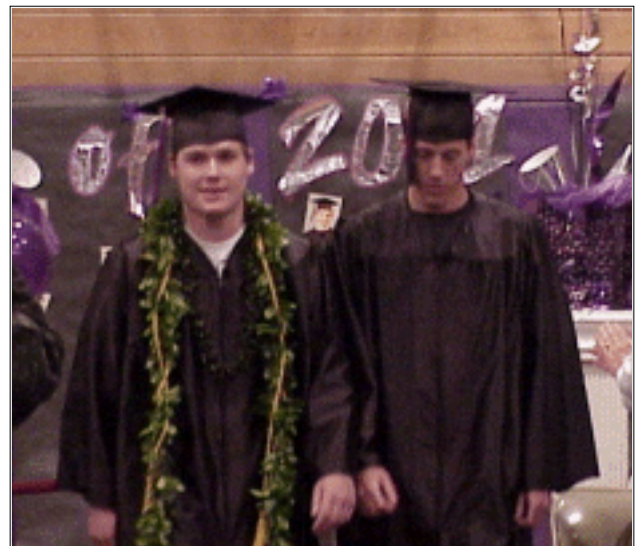

NHS members are as follows: back, Joel Foster, Kevin Gore, Starla Clayton, Kean Flemming, middle, MarVi Shumaker-Pruitt, Amanda Hughes, Ashley Everest, Tyler Tronson, front, Heather House, Shawn Lang, and Sara Moskowitz. Not pictured: Adviser Anne Guerin, and Shilo McKenzie.

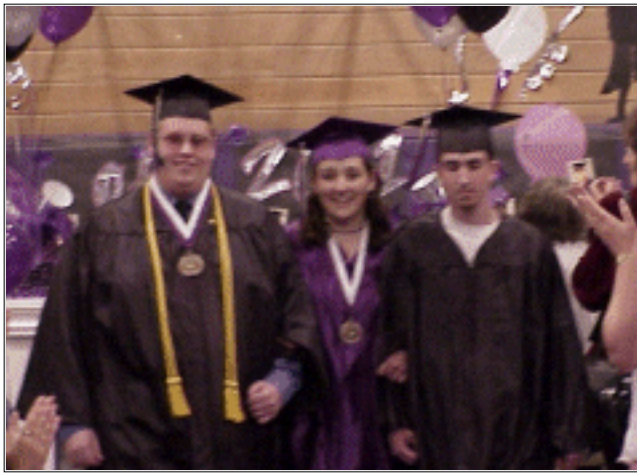

The Lighthouse chapter of the NHS was busier than ever this year. The members decided that it was high time to clean the section of highway that had been adopted by the NHS through the Adopt a Highway Program more than seven years ago. The roadway hadn't been cleaned for five years, so out they went and clean up they did. They cleaned once in December and again in May. NHS also had the annual Christmas party to raise money and canned food for a local foodbank. Mardi Gras was also sponsored by NHS and was a great success. The president this year was Shilo McKenzie, vice president was Kean Fleming, and secretary/treasurer Amanda Hughes. Our local chapter of the NHS was very busy this year.

Heather House puts her shoes on in preparation of the highway clean-up.
