Our staff here at Pacific is irreplaceable. They are the circulatory system of this school, always working, even involuntarily at home, to keep this ship afloat. Encouraging students to do their best comes as second nature to them and they go out of their way to make sure Pacific, Home of the Pirates, is taken care of the right way.

As usual, the Pacific maintenance did an extraordinary job this year keeping our school clean and tidy. They even installed a new filtered, water-bottle accessible fountain in the school that will serve for years to come, and will even help save the environment! Over all, our maintenance crew kept the rhythm of life at Pacific right on track.

Not to brag or anything, but the teachers here at Pacific are really something special. They wear many different hats throughout their day. The majority of our teachers additionally teach middle school, and some are even offering dual credit classes. Most, if not all, of our teachers are invested in this school in some way or another beyond the simple work day and traditional school year. Sometimes they even go as far as to bring their puppies to school to brighten students' days!

"This year's cross country team was small, but mighty. All the student-athletes worked hard to improve their times and had fun working hard. There were fun road trips to Eugene and Grants Pass, and short ones where all it did was rain. I am proud of the time and effort everybody put into this sport and it showed by the PR's we had at districts. We all had a great time doing one of the hardest things known to mankind.....RUNNING (Well, watching for me:))!!!"

Pacific High's prom was Un Explosión (a blast)! The plan to have the 2018 prom on Cinco De Mayo was a success as The Langlois Cheese Factory was lit for festivities. Mr. Taylor, math teacher by day and DJ by night, festively introduced prom queen Claire Kelly and prom king Josh Engdahl. Muchas Gracias! Huge thanks to the junior prom committee for throwing an unforgettable Fiesta. Special thanks to Kari Engdahl for helping set up and organize and Eric Wyatt who was the night's photographer.

Associated Student Body Officers

The 2017-18 class officers worked together and planned many fun events. Every class this year got to have their own dance: freshmen had the Fall Harvest Dance, sophomores put on Glow With The Flow dance, juniors held prom and seniors planned Homecoming. Josh Engdahl will pass the torch down to the next ASB president as he prepares for graduation.

Shakespeare Festival

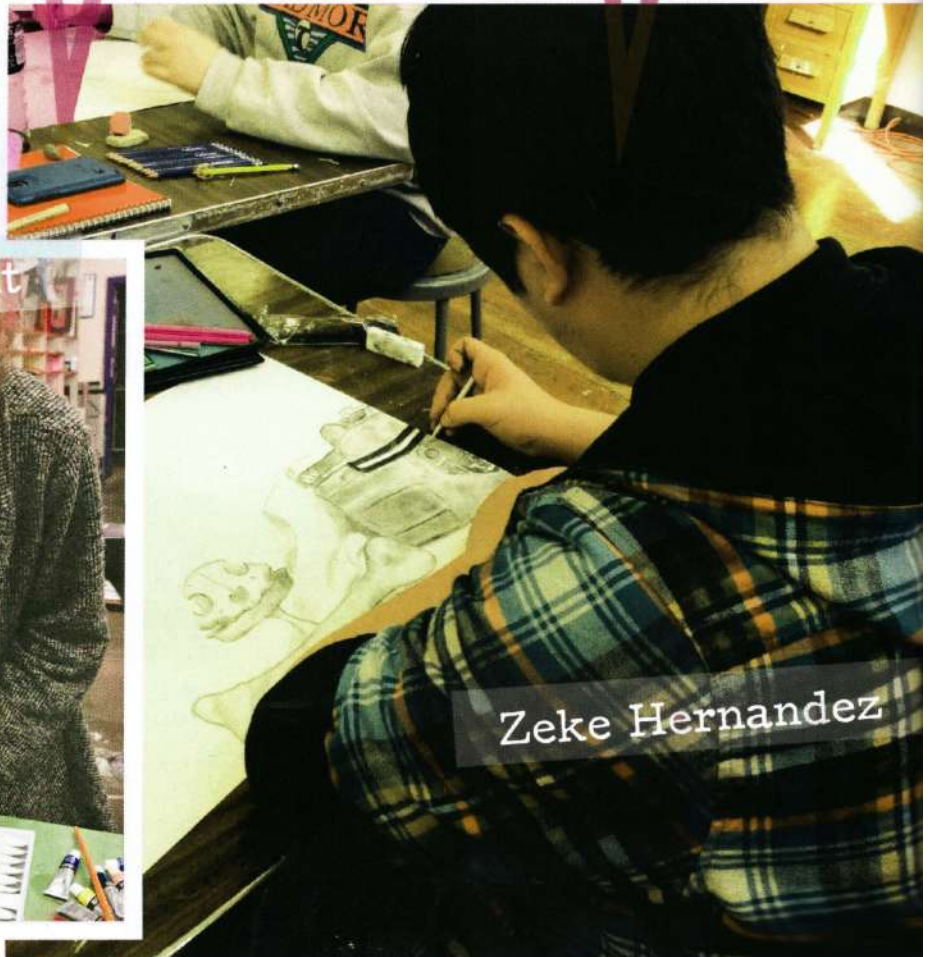

FBLA had a great year with our top scores reaching 5th in the national competition. Mrs. Jezuit is elated to see the efforts of next year's FBLA team! "NHS was a great group," Mrs. Jezuit said, "Looking forward to more years with the students that are there and the ones that will be joining." Mrs. Jezuit was thrilled to take a third of the school to the Shakespeare Festival located in Ashland. The trip consisted of a tour of Southern Oregon University and the two plays: Sense and Sensibility and Othello.

Band, choir, fine arts... just a sampling of classes to practice our talents.

Skills Day was brought to an amazing end with nine awards and a total overall team first in the math competition two years in a row.

The Human Experience

Señora Wyatt and her Spanish 2/3 class pushed through an amazing year with many engaged students. The production of Narnia en Español was an excellent way to practice language acquisition while making props, sets and character costumes. As the festivities progressed in the Spanish class, a room down the hall was full of literature bursting out the door. Mrs. Jezuit was excited to share with the freshmen class a lovely new book, "The House On Mango Street" by Sandra Cisneros.

Write, Re-write,

Mrs. Jezuit:
People-a...People-a!

Breathe in, Breath out.

Across from the sonnets of Shakespeare and many conversations on World War II literature, is a class discussing a completely different topic like the colonization of America. Mrs. Skinner grabs her students' attention with a coloring sheet of the United States to fill in with the state names and capitols. Walking back up the hall during 7th period, past studies on diabetes and nutrition in health, the leadership class is found planning the next assembly. A spring fling ended the year with many activities and an emotional goodbye to the seniors.

A Spike in the Learning Curve

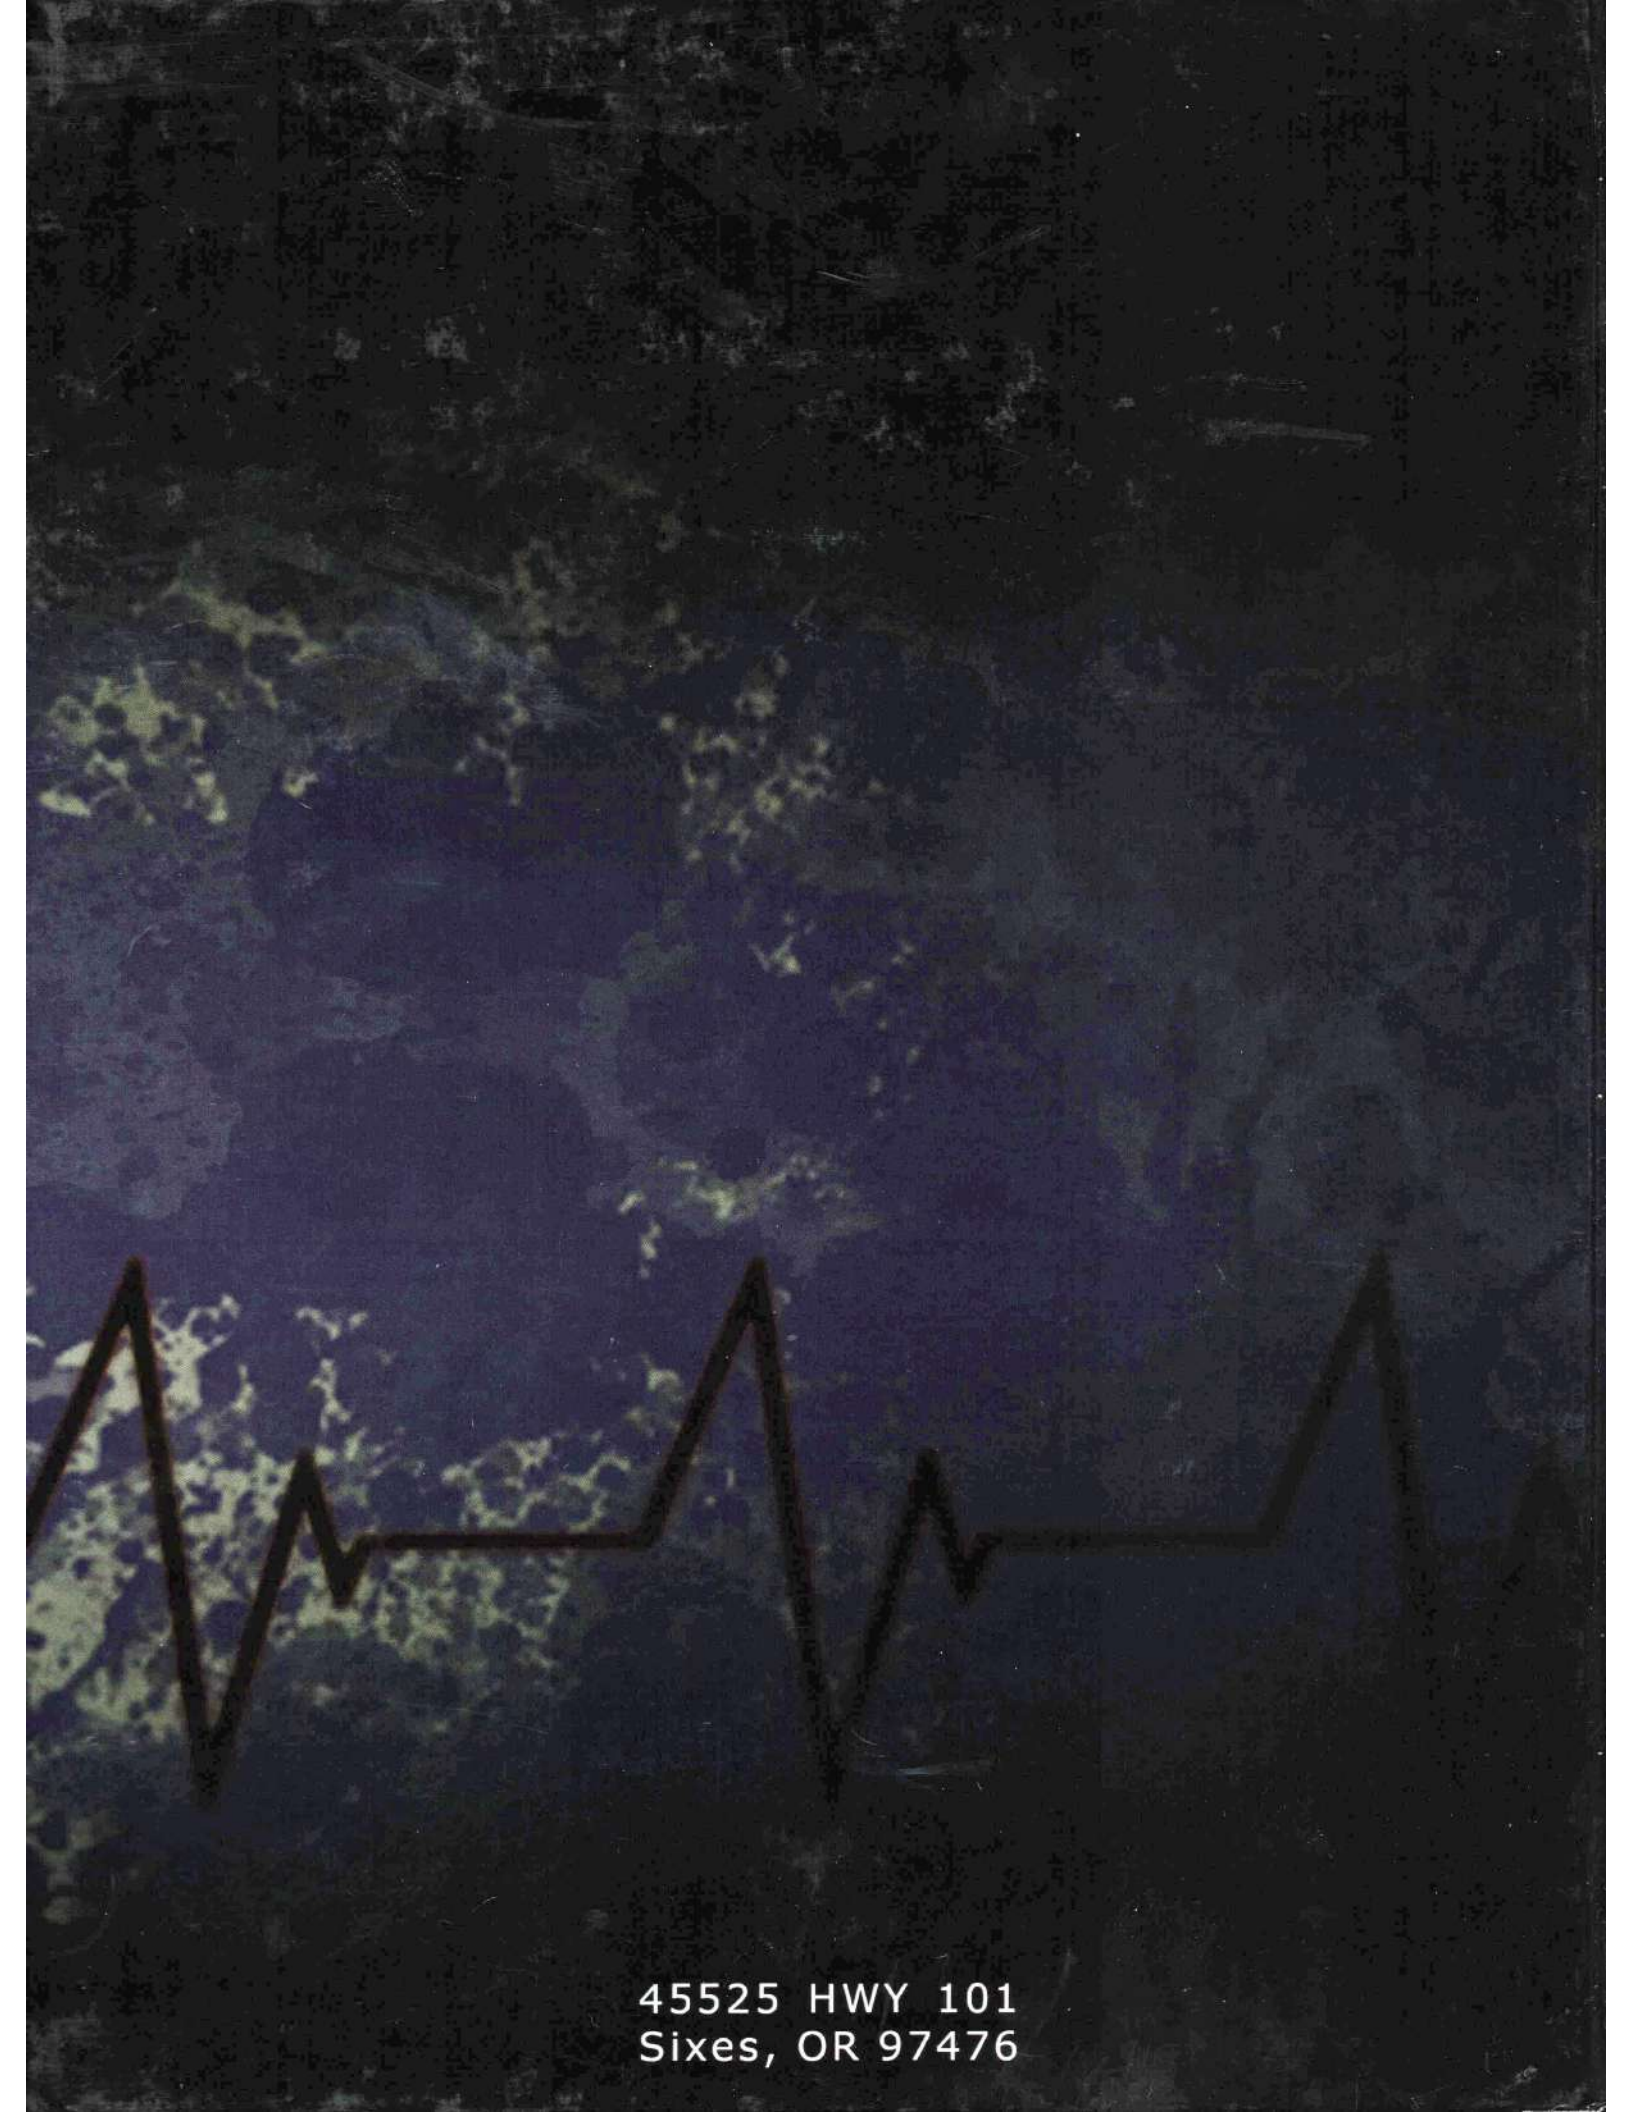

New Year, New Class, New Experience

Three freshmen, two sophomores, one junior, zero understanding of the class itself... but that soon changed as the Yearbook/Journalism students were launched into a whole new world of crazy. From making last minute business calls, to spewing out spreads, these six students became very frantic as the year was coming to an end. Sadly, their beloved Bacon, which was the school newspaper, was lost in a time-crunch learning curve. However, this took some weight off of the students' shoulders. They knew that they had to go out with a big bang. And, in the end, they did.
